Comptroller Launches Online Library With 35 Years of Maryland Tax Guidance

Free resource lets taxpayers, businesses and tax professionals search more than 200 publications and filter results by tax type and topic

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (November 20, 2026) — The Office of the Comptroller today launched its online Legal Library, a free, searchable website where taxpayers, businesses and tax professionals can find guidance on how the agency interprets and administers Maryland tax law. The library brings together more than 200 publications dating back to 1991, including guidance previously spread across older agency webpages and archived PDFs. The Comptroller's Office will continue to expand the library over the coming months, adding new and historical content.

Users can search the library by keyword, filter results by document type, tax type, or topic, and sort them by issue date. The collection includes technical bulletins, tax alerts, tax tips, administrative releases, and other guidance on Maryland tax law.

The library contains prior versions of many of the Comptroller's current publications. The date of any document, including a document labeled "latest guidance," should be considered when evaluating the content's current relevance.

The Legal Library is part of the Comptroller's broader effort to modernize the agency and make it easier for Marylanders to meet their tax obligations.
